

Stay Connected From Your Home at Sea

Conduct business and catch up with family and friends from anywhere on Earth

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLORIDA – Working from home has become a way of life for many, and it's easier than ever before, especially if your home is on The World, Residences at Sea. For Residents of the world's largest privately owned mega-yacht, staying connected with business associates or chatting with family and friends is trouble-free thanks to state-of-the-art systems. Nowhere else can you peer outside your home office window to see a mother polar bear and her cub glancing back at you from a nearby ice floe one day while marveling at the Sydney Opera House on another. Staying connected and conducting business from the comfort of home, all while exploring the wonders of our planet, is easy on The World.

Internet, telephone, and broadcast services on The World allow Residents to conduct business and communicate with family and friends with ease from virtually anywhere on Earth. Whether it's sailing the pristine waters of Antarctica, passing through Polynesia's remote islands or navigating the beautiful Seychelles, staying in touch is only a call or a click away.

All Residents, guests and crew on board have unrestricted internet service with a robust Wi-Fi network that extends throughout the Ship. The World uses multiple satellite service providers including Starlink's low orbit satellite services and is a first adopter of a state-of-the-art bandwidth management software driven by artificial intelligence. It is specifically designed for satellite connectivity and provides the best possible quality of experience and internet service availability. Additionally, The World continues to test new low orbit satellite technologies that will further improve the Ship's internet connectivity.

For some Residents, knowing that they can host video conference calls, check email and conduct important web-based research from virtually anywhere on the planet from their 'home office at sea' was a prerequisite before purchasing a residence on The World. The Ship's advanced technology helped to make their decision easy.

"I can run my company, attend board meetings and video chat with my parents who live in London all while I travel the globe," says one UK Resident. "I've had conference calls in the morning and kayaked Norwegian fjords in the afternoon," he adds. "While in Tristan da Cunha, the most remote inhabited island in the world that's over 1,500 miles from the nearest port, I hosted a videoconference with my sales team. It was as if I was in the next room. It couldn't have been easier."

Additional 'stay connected' benefits afforded by this unique and exclusive lifestyle include:

- Home offices afford easy storage of important documents and business equipment, which is difficult to near impossible when traveling conventionally.
- For Residents with international business contacts, The World serves as a convenient and fascinating venue for meetings, cultural experiences, and entertainment.
- Two large conference rooms and a smaller private room feature state-of-the-art audio-visual equipment.
